THE CONCEPT
Designed as a three-week resident program, the Seminar on Regional Security is a regionally focused course for professionals from across government and the private sector who work in conflict analysis and management or crisis mitigation. Held at the George C. Marshall Center, in Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, the course is conducted annually in English and Russian. The course program can be adapted to specific functional needs of military, political, and civil society personnel and be conducted as a non-resident program at your location.

THE OBJECTIVES
By the end of the course, participants will be able to:
• Analyze current security crises.
• Understand their impact on regional security
• Identify patterns of conflict management
• Consider the gender dimensions of conflict and conflict management
• Practice negotiation techniques
• Join a network of over 200 former SRS participants – reaching from the US and Ireland to South Korea, from the Baltic States to Turkey.

THE MODULES
Module 1: Developing a Common Understanding – Introduction of the analytical and practical tools used during SRS.
Module 2: Analyzing Conflict and Conflict Management – Analysis of Regional Conflicts, Their Root Causes, Conflict Parties, and Conflict Management Effectiveness.

THE PARTICIPANTS
The SRS is aimed at mid-level through senior military and civilian government officials as well as NGO representatives who:
• Have a relevant background in conflict management;
• Will be deployed to a crisis region;
• Consult (or advise) their institutions on crisis analysis and conflict management.

Participants should have a clear professional interest in and background knowledge of regional or transnational and international crisis management. This course strives for balanced gender participation and encourages applications from women.
